M Read the article about Jenny's trip. Then choose the correct answer.

Jenny enjoyed studying geography most at school. She liked history too, but because she didn't enjoy sports or science, she didn't like going to school very much. When Jenny was only 17 years old, her parents made a decision. They decided to take her around the world on a boat for a year. They decided to rent a sail boat with a kitchen and two comfortable beds. Jenny didn't take anything she didn't need. She put all of her clothes into a suitcase and all of her schoolbooks into her backpack. She didn't take her smartphone. Her parents knew that this was going to be the best lesson of her life. In the summer of 2015, Jenny and her family left home and sailed around the world.

Jenny visited lots of different countries that were in her school geography books. Her mom and dad took her to historical places like Rome, where she learned about the Romans while sitting in the Coliseum. And they went to Athens, where she learned all about the Greeks when they visited the Acropolis. Every evening, her mom told fascinating stories from a history book and talked about their day. Jenny also wrote an article about the interesting sounds and smells of each historical location, then emailed it to her classmates. What did she miss? She said she missed her home and her friends every day, but her school trip was the best experience!

1 What subjects didn't Jenny like?

- A geography and math
- B music and history
- C sports and science

2 How did the family travel around the world?

- A by plane
- B by boat
- C by car

3 Did Jenny only learn about geography?

- A Yes, she did.
- B No, she also learned about money.
- C No, she learned about geography and history.

4 What did Jenny do every evening?

- A She sent her classmates a message.
- B She talked about her day with her dad.
- C She talked with her mom and emailed her classmates.

5 Who did Jenny miss?

- A She missed her home and friends.
- B She missed her friends.
- C he missed her classmates.

N Read the interviews about shopping habits. Then match the descriptions to the people.

It's Saturday afternoon and everyone is spending money. But what do they buy? Journalist Jean Simms went to Mexico City to find out.

That's a good question. I've never stopped to think about what I buy. I think I just buy what I need. If I don't need it, I don't buy it! It's that simple. People are crazy if they spend money on things they don't want. Today I bought some fruit for breakfast and some pasta with mushroom sauce for lunch. Well, my job means I sometimes go to bed late!

José – police officer

I'm shopping today to buy a birthday present for one of my close friends. It's really difficult because she already has many of the things I want to buy for her. There's a great store downtown that sells everything and that will help me with ideas. If there's nothing there, maybe I'll just get her some perfume. I know she likes that a lot.

Kathy – nurse

Well, most of my money goes on clothes and I often buy something new to wear every month. I just bought a new hat because I'm going to a wedding next month and I want to look nice. I've seen some shoes and a purse that will match so I'd like to buy those too. If I have the money in my purse, I always spend it! It's a dangerous hobby!

Margherita – paramedic

I love extreme sports so on weekends I do something different. Last weekend my group of friends climbed up the spectacular 17,000 foot high Iztaccihuatl Volcano. It isn't active so there is no danger. The air was clean and there are no cars or noise. We walked to the top in three hours and I didn't buy new boots because I borrowed my friend's ones, so all I paid for was the tour, and that wasn't expensive. Next week we're going to walk 27 miles along the Matacames River.

John – accountant

- 1 This person walks a lot on weekends. _____
- 2 This person is going to a special event next month. _____
- 3 This person only spends money on things she/he needs. _____
- 4 This person is buying a birthday present today. _____
- 5 This person bought some food today. _____
