

EVOLVE LEVEL 2, Audioscript for Unit 2 Quiz B

Radio show presenter: Thanks for listening to this special show about helping teenagers. I want to talk to you about a famous book called *‘The Art of Being a Brilliant Teenager’. I have a copy here on my desk because my grandson, Christopher, is a teenager. He spends all day in front of a screen and never does any housework to help his mom, my daughter! I’m sorry she has no free time at all. She does the laundry, makes lunch and all the plans for the annual vacation. That’s crazy! She also works in an office three days a week. She only sleeps 4 hours a night! I don’t know how she does it!

Anyway, back to teenagers. Christopher is very good at organizing a calendar of the housework. He has a file with three documents for each day – morning, afternoon and evening. There are the days and times of when his mother and brothers do the dishes, do the laundry, make the beds and have some free time. He organizes his whole family, but he can’t organize himself! All he does is work on his laptop and make plans for his family and his friends. He works on seven calendars at the same time, but he doesn’t do anything else. I hope the book helps me find a solution!
