Jonti's thought for the day

What would you ban?

Have you ever thought about this? Imagine you had the power to make laws for your country. Is there anything that you would ban?

I've got a list of things that I don't think should be allowed. But, before I tell you what you may do and may not do in my imaginary world, let's look at some interesting facts.

Do you know the board game Scrabble? You spell words with little letter tiles? Well, Scrabble was banned in Romania during the 1980s. Fortunately, Romanians nowadays can happily play Scrabble!

Do you know which country bans chewing gum? That's right, it's Singapore. A law that I personally totally support. But more on that later.

Another one is dancing after midnight in Japan. Again, this is allowed now, but a few years ago people weren't supposed to dance in clubs after midnight.

Then there's food. Kinder Surprise Candy eggs, banned in the US. And Red Bull, banned in France and Denmark.

OK, now let's get to my personal list.

First, I'd ban escalators in subways and malls. Yes, I know that some people need them, but for them I'd make sure these places had elevators. For everyone else, good old-fashioned stairs are good enough. Why? Escalators are unnecessary and waste a lot of energy. That, and everyone could use more exercise.

Next, I'd ban the use of cell phones on the subway and in trains. What is more annoying than hearing somebody else's conversation about what they are going to have for dinner? All you want to do is have a quiet journey home after a long day at work!

1 Which country banned the board game Scrabble?

- A Singapore
- B Romania
- C Japan

2 Which ban does Jonti agree with?

- A not being allowed to play Scrabble
- B not being allowed to have chewing gum
- C not being allowed to dance after midnight

3 Which laws that Jonti mentions do not exist now?

- A the ban on Scrabble and chewing gum
- B the ban on chewing gum and dancing
- C the ban on dancing and Scrabble

4 Why would Jonti ban escalators?

- A because they're dangerous
- B because elevators are better
- C because they run constantly and use a lot of energy

5 Why would Jonti ban cell phones on the subway?

- A because you can't relax when people are talking on the phone
- B because you can't think about what you're going to have for dinner
- C because the conversations aren't interesting
