How to measure success

Success means different things to different people. Here are some words of wisdom about how to measure the success in your life.

A Decide what really matters to you.

It is common to think of success as something concrete, such as having a well-paid job. But it's important to make a list of different success factors which include material and non-material things, such as emotional well-being, personal satisfaction, friendships.

B Compare yourself only against yourself and not others.

We often measure our success by comparing ourselves to others. By doing so, we are being unfair to ourselves, often setting unreachable goals which can be a real downer. So, a word of advice, chart your own progress towards that goal, and remember to congratulate yourself when you can see that progress is being made.

C Measure things which are not normally measured.

Some things like wealth are easy to measure. You look at your bank statement and you can see the amount of money that you have. But there are many other areas of life which we can evaluate and measure which are not so obviously countable. For example, if you decide that success for you is about feeling confident, then this can be measured by observing how confident you feel every day.

D Be patient. Think about the long-term goals.

Real success is not something that is usually obtained overnight. Financial stability is not often found by winning the lottery, nor is true love often found in an instant. In order to get genuine stability, both financial and emotional, it might take time, so you need to be determined and patient.

E Re-evaluate if what you wanted yesterday is still the same today.

The search for success is a journey and some journeys take longer than others. So you may need to go back to step 1 from time to time to re-evaluate what really matters and how relevant that is today.

- 1 It's not important to achieve your goals very quickly. ____
- 2 Things are constantly changing and evolving and they aren't the same for very long. ____
- 3 What others have or haven't achieved isn't important. ____
- 4 Think carefully about what you want to achieve and write down your goals. ____
- 5 Not everything in life can be assessed and counted. ____
